The Endorsement Primary

By AARON BYCOFFE

In presidential primaries, endorsements have been among the best predictors of which candidates will succeed and which will fail. So we're keeping track.

SUBWAY HEAT

WNYC
AM 820

Riders know the NYC subway platforms get steamy in the summer, but which are the hottest? We tried to find out on a 96-degree day, visiting 103 platforms south of Central Park during the evening rush on July 29, 2015.

409 students enrolled

95.4% completely vaccinated

Schools reporting a vaccination rate of at least 90%, such as this one, are generally considered to have "herd immunity" — meaning enough students are immune from measles and other diseases to prevent those illnesses from spreading through a group as an outbreak. This doesn't mean it's impossible for an outbreak to happen, since vaccines are not 100% effective.

NYC Health Department officials investigate many schools with vaccination rates below 90% and even some with rates below 95%, depending on the circumstances. Principals are responsible for making sure all students get vaccinated.

Schools in New York State require K-12 students to be vaccinated for diphtheria, hepatitis B, measles, mumps, pertussis, polio, tetanus and varicella (chickenpox), depending on grade level. More information about requirements is in this New York State Department of Health document.

NYPD BRUISED

Police departments around the country consider frequent charges of resisting arrest a potential red flag, as some officers might add the charge to justify use of force. WNYC analyzed NYPD records and found 51,503 cases with resisting arrest charges since 2009. Just five percent of officers who made arrests during that period account for 40% of resisting arrest cases — and 15% account for almost 3/4 of such cases.

Records are CONFIDENTIAL in 23 states.

AK											ME
	WA	ID	MT	ND	MN	WI	MI		VT	NH	MA
	OR	NV	WY	SD	IA	IN	OH	PA	NY	CT	RI
	CA	UT	CO	NE	MO	IL	KY	MD	DE	NJ
		AZ	NM	KS	AR	TN	WV	VA	NC
				OK	LA	MS	AL	GA	SC		DC
HI					TX				FL

In these states, and the District of Columbia, a police officer's disciplinary history is mostly unavailable through public records requests.

In some cases, all public employee personnel files are exempt from disclosure. In others, police departments withhold records under a general privacy exemption.

Laws in New York, California, and Delaware specifically make law enforcement officers' personnel records confidential.

Records have LIMITED availability in 15 states.

AK											ME
	WA	ID	MT	ND	MN	WI	MI		VT	NH	MA
	OR	NV	WY	SD	IA	IN	OH	PA	NY	CT	RI

		AZ	NM	KS	AR	TN	WV	VA	NC
				OK	LA	MS	AL	GA	SC		DC
HI					TX				FL

In these states, police disciplinary records are available to the public in some situations.

In some of these states, only records of severe discipline, like a suspension or termination, are public while the rest is confidential. In others, responses vary by department because of evolving court precedents or ambiguity in the law.
